STATEMENT

A statement about my work used to be a clear cut idea, physical qualities of the material fused with my ideas and personal thoughts about the material. Now, that no longer seems to satisfy my curiosities and I am not sure I can make a statement that is a summation.

Now the attempt, or addiction might be a better chosen work, seems to be work based on work. The more I do, the more I see that needs done. The more time I spend inventing artistic statements, the more confused I get with "art jargon." I seem always to return to the work for answers. With my work, I slowly plot a course of ideas and although there are always new questions, I find progress and answers. All that once was, is still ongoing. The building of thoughts, ideas and concepts mixed with the handling of the material which makes it unique to me.
